

THE REVELATION OF ENTANGLEMENT AND LIFE AS THE EXISTENCE OF SUPERPOSITION

Quantum particles exist not as “things” but as potentialities. Possibilities. Physicists say that quantum particles exist in a state of superposition; that is, they exist in all possible states – until an observer comes along, and through the laws of probability, turns the superposition into a single “position.” This is the observer/participant effect.

Now, scientists have recently discovered that molecules (the combination of atoms, and atoms which are the combination of quantum particles) also exist in a “fuzzy” non-definable superposition-like state, proving that as we move into larger shapes, the wacky world of quantum reality doesn’t dissipate. No, no. Classical physics can only be seen, like the quantum world, as possibilities being sifted down into events through probabilistic measures. In other words, it is more probable that a billiard ball will bounce this way than it is another; but that doesn’t necessarily negate the other “way” it could bounce, it just doesn’t fit the observer’s view of what is probable, hence it appears to move mechanically – when in reality, mechanics has nothing to do with it.

Quantum particles, for instance the electron, do not have mass, hence they are not bound by the laws of mass objects (Time and Space). Physicists have determined that Time is an illusion. Well, what about space? The Entanglement of quantum particles, resulting in the effects termed “non-local,” ultimately suggest that Space itself, or rather the separation between objects, is also an illusion.

What does all this mean?

Let’s look at what we know. Ourselves and our bodies. Going from the old adage “As above so below” (meaning “On earth as it is in Heaven”) let’s look at what we know about our life on earth.

You have what appears to be a single body; a unit of being with a Name (Sam, Samantha, what have you). But in reality, we know this in itself is not true. Your body is made up of several different organs, working together to create the Illusion of a single body. What’s more, even the singular organs are not singular, they are the collection of molecules coming together to form those organs. Even deeper than that, what appears to be a single molecule is in itself, also NOT singular, it is the collection of atoms giving rise to that molecule. And what is an atom? It, too, is not singular. Is a collection of quantum particles coming together. And what are quantum particles? Those things that do not have mass nor substance, and are the superposition of potential possibilities.

“As above, so below – On Earth as it is in Heaven.” So far, we have followed our Illusion of Singular Existence backwards into the void, but can we also go the other direction and move forward into it as well? Time and Space being an Illusion, yes, we can. For if it is all energy collecting upon itself to create the Illusion of something singular, then one could say that the collective unity of Mankind is another Organ within the body of a super-organism (If you choose to call it God, you could do that). We become an organ for the planet, the planet becomes an organ for the galaxy, the galaxy becomes an organ for a universe, the universe becomes an organ for . . . Eventually leading to something that is . . .

If we live what appears to be our singular life through the existence of all the gestalt energies coming together to create our bodies, and we are simply organ-type structures for a larger order of being, then is not that other Being living its life through us? We live our lives through the workings of our organs, and the organs live its life through the workings of the molecules, and the molecules . . . All the way down to the quantum particles, why would this not go the other direction, to where All Life that we see as being separate, are simply another “organ” in the body and life of the Ultimate creator.

And what is the Ultimate creator?

Quantum physicists tell us that the effects of Entanglement exist between particles that have been in proximity to one another, that have at one time been “entangled.” They also admit that prior to the Big Bang, all particles existed in a super-close, bundled entanglement. But particles, again, are not things, they are possibilities. And, again using an electron as an example, a single electron can exist in a million different possibilities. Space being an illusion, then the effects of Entanglement are nothing more than a Single Element. And the Single Element isn’t doing anything. This Single Element hasn’t moved through Time, because Time is an illusion, nor has it moved through Space, because Space is an illusion. It is our Observation that makes it appear that way. Moreover, with Time and Space being illusory, the Single Element – is still a Single Element and the Big Bang is just another Illusion.

So what is life? Life is the Single Element, which, for lack of a better term, can be called the Creative Element (CE), or some people will inevitably want to refer to it as God, and it is this element that is in a state of Superposition. This state of Superposition results in its Oneness being All That Is. “As Above, So Below, On Earth as it is in Heaven,” therefore, the CE is a macro version of the micro quantum particle. In its state of Superposition, its Superposition results in the existence of All Life.

Now, the human brain is a filter for energy. That is, our brain filters the “out there” world of energy and translates it for us “in our heads” and puts it all together to form our Observed reality. But, what is the brain but another form of energy coming together to form the brain? So, ultimately, you have – in its most gross term – energy turning back on itself to filter itself and define itself. And if we as beings are just another form of energy, then our energy, too, is also “wrapped up” and just another part of a larger whole, which is ultimately the CE.

Now, as you dig down into the quantum realm, all things break up. That is, classical laws fall apart, because pure potential and possibilities cannot be pinned down simply because they are pure possibility. This, too, is the behavior of the macro CE. The further “out” you go, an Observer would become less defined, as Time and Space would lose its Illusionary status, as all potential and possibility is being experienced in the Macro Realm of Time and Space. As we cannot Observe all the Experiences of the trillion cells in our body one at a time (but only collectively), so the CE cannot experience all our experience individually, but is living of Itself THROUGH these things. And quantum Entanglement, showing there is no separation, reveals that ultimately, All Life is this one Creative Element in its act of Superposition.

As you would never say your liver is a sinner, or less than perfect, but indeed you need your liver in order to experience wholly your life, then also so does the CE need us in order to live Its full life. We exist as one of its many potentialities. Moreover, when we come from this perspective, we can live within the realm of what appears to be “divine inspiration.”

Again, take a look at your body. You cut your finger, what happens? Cells mobilize to create the processes necessary to heal the wound. Cellular biologist Bruce Lipton tells us that cells react to the environment they’re living in. So, when the body gets cut, these cells, ultimately, are being “inspired” by their environment to behave in a certain way to bring about healing. Or, you want to pick up a pencil, and then all the cells and the community of your organs and tissue move to make that happen – that movement is akin to “inspiration” coming from your wish to pick up the pencil.

It can be the same with All Life. Life, in its myriad of forms, is the Act of Potentiality from the Single Element, living its life in Inspiration from the Ultimate Life of the CE. As cells remain “open and aware” to receive the inspiration from your consciousness to heal a wound, if you are open and aware, you may receive your sense of “inspiration” from the CE. And since the CE is all Potentials existing in Superposition, some people’s inspiration will be to become teachers, while others, ditch diggers. Neither one is any better than the other, as the CE doesn’t come from separation or dualism, as all that is Illusion, in accordance with the Illusion of Space and Time – it is simply another Potential within the realm of All Potentials existing in the eternal, boundless Timeless moment of Superposition.

So what is the purpose of life? To live it. The CE lives its single existence through US and ALL LIFE, as we are each a single potential in its Superposition. “As Above, So Below” – continues within us, as we have all the Potentials within us, going back down to the Quantum Particles that exist within a state of Pure Potentiality and Superposition. That means, as the energy of our brains is energy filtering back on itself, our lives is another version of energy living out potentiality upon itself through the filter of experience. We are creators, again experiencing the myriad of Superposition possibilities by playing them out through the Illusion of Time and Space through our own existences, going outward to the One Creative Element. And when we remain open to the ultimate One, the CE, as our thoughts inspire our cells to heal us and live happily, we live a life of inspiration and happiness as the life of the CE.

Each observer and consciousness, too, is a single potential within the superposition of the CE, as each person has a personality, yet these are not separate things, for it is only energy (like a sound wave, it has peaks and troughs. You could say a peak is one personality, a trough another, yet it is all one thing). Each emotion is also a single potential within the superposition of the CE. And the CE experiences all this At Once, as does a Quantum Particle, unbound in Time and Space.

And what is energy?

The law of conservation and thermodynamics says the energy of the universe is constant and never changes, no matter what happens. It never increases, it never diminishes. Again, this proves, all life is the superposition of the CE. The CE is the alpha and the omega. It has no beginning, it has no end. It IS – THROUGH US (all life; e.g. universes, galaxies, planets, larger objects, organs, molecules, atoms, particles). The reality of energy is a part of the Superposition of the One CE in order to experience its Superposition through the life of All That Is, in order to give rise to the Illusion of Time and Space, to experience its Oneness in an existence that would otherwise be non-existent.

And in Nothingness lies the potential for Everything, for Nothingness knows No Limits and No Boundaries.

“As Above, so Below. On Earth, as it is in Heaven.”
